EARLY ENTRANTS HOLD GREAT ADVANTAGE IN BIG CAMPAIGN

To Be Sure Your Name Will Be Among First Entries, Mail or Bring Nomination to Headquarters at 313 Mill
Street — Go After the Big Prizes Now

TEN BIG GOLD CASH PRIZES TO BE GIVEN AWAY

With its aim a reader of The Courier in every home in this territory, the announcement was made yesterday of the most astounding Grand Prize Campaign ever made public in this section of Pennsylvania. It's the greatest gold gift distribution on record in this region, without a doubt, and every reader of the paper or any resident of this territory can participate in this grand distribution.

$10,000 in prizes will be disbursed among the men and women, boys and girls of this community within the next few weeks by this paper. It is freely predicted by this amazing prize distribution—the liberality of which exceeds any previous attempt in this section, will be one of the most successful in the history of newspapers.

Red Tape Is Taboo

There will be no red tape, no strings in this campaign. The awards will be given away to our home folks. Any resident of either sex is eligible to enter the distribution, unless they are employees of the office of this newspaper or members of the immediate family of such employees. It is not even necessary that the participant be a subscriber to this paper. And, remember, every active participant is absolutely guaranteed a commission of 25%.

It will not cost any candidate a single cent to enter this competition and secure one of the big gold prizes either now or later.

The only stipulation that this paper makes, is as stated above, that no employee of this office or member of the immediate family of such employee can compete. Children under 16 years of age will be allowed to enter only with the written consent of their parents or guardians.

You Can Not Lose

You can not lose. You are paid for every minute of your time. Every active non-prize winner is given an absolute guarantee that he or she will be paid for his or her time—25 per cent of every subscription is yours even if you fail to land one of the big gifts. That, in itself, is a good business proposition. We all have spare moments after work that we can turn into cash.

There is one thing, though, that is certain. There is absolutely no way you can secure one of these prizes—except by votes.

Profitable—Enjoyable

"Electioneering" will be most enjoyable as well as profitable work. And it will pay you big.

Decide now. Make up your mind to enter. Win. Earn real money. Earn more money in the next few weeks than you ever earned before in like time. Enter. Get in. To win. Everybody wins. You cannot lose.

Cut out or tear out the nomination coupon in this issue of the paper. Write in your name, your address and, if you have a telephone number. Mail or bring your nomination to the Campaign headquarters, 313 Mill street, Bristol. That starts you off with 5,000 votes.

Nominations may be made by anyone. A nomination is a nomination. A friend can nominate you. You can nominate a friend. But only one nomination counts for each entry. No one is barred. Men, women, boys and girls are all eligible. Make the start. Let's go.

Short and Snappy

This campaign will not be a long, drawn out affair of several months' duration. It extends over a period of only a few weeks. Think of securing in a few short weeks, prizes that would ordinarily require months, yes even years of self-denying and saving to acquire—and these are given to you for your spare time and a little interest.

Fallsington

ONE ARREST IS MADE

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 28. — Two youths are in serious condition at St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J., and a third is in jail here as the result of an accident on the Lincoln Highway yesterday afternoon, when their automobile, stolen at Greensboro, N. C., crashed into an abutment at the Fallsington tunnel. All three youths were hurled to the highway and the machine was demolished.

Anthony Afruzzi, 19 years old, of 210 Broadway, Staten Island, was committed to the Morrisville Jail by State Highway patrolmen after he received treatment at St. Francis Hospital for a cut on the hand. According to the Morrisville authorities, he confessed that the trio stole the automobile in North Carolina while they were returning to their homes from Florida.

Police have established a watch over John Goffredo and John Vecchio, 18-year-old youths of West New Brighton, Staten Island, who are in the hospital. Vecchio is suffering from serious shock, a severe laceration over the left eye and lacerations of the forehead. Goffredo is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and a fractured right arm. In addition, he sustained several torn tendons in his right hand.

The three were removed to the hospital by C. A. Goodwin, of Philadelphia, who was passing at the time of the accident.

Patrolman V. C. Coughlin and H. O. Ohlfelder, of the South Langhorne Highway Patrol, are investigating. The boys will later be turned over to Federal authorities.

TAXPAYERS' FIGHT TO GO TO SUPREME COURT

Decision Reached After Prayer of Hilltown Taxpayers is Denied

MEETING ON APRIL 13TH

HILLTOWN, Mar. 28.—The fight of the Hilltown Taxpayers' Association is to be taken before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

This decision has been reached and the "war board" of the association has been directed by that organization which is fighting for the dismissal of the Hilltown Township school board, to take the matter to higher authorities.

The decision followed the decree of Judge Samuel Shull when the prayer of the petitioners was denied and the school directors were ordered to pay the costs.

The members of the Taxpayers' League, who brought the action, charged that certain alleged irregularities were carried on by the board members and that they were unfit for office.

The 900 people who have signed the petitions protesting the selection of the school board of a near-Blooming Glen site for Hilltown's new farm high school, were asked to meet last evening at the Blooming Glen high school, when the Hilltown directors were scheduled to open bids for the erection of the $110,000 building.

The costs in the case, in which Judge Shull just handed down his decision, will amount to about $80 for each of the five defendants. The quarter will also be called upon to defray expenses of their attorney, Mark Thatcher, as they were proceeded against as individuals.

Chairman Byrd, in announcing the war board's recommendation of an appeal from Judge Shull's decision, said that course was advised by Attorney Grim. There was some opposition from J. Arthur Rosenberger, Charles Carpenter and others, when it was stated the proceeding would cost $1100, and that a decision might not be forthcoming for a year or more, within which time it is expected two of the board members will be retired from public life by incensed voters. A more "drastic" course of action was preferred.

"We already have provided for that but we feel this decision is unfair and should be reversed if possible," Mr. Byrd stated. He said the printing of the record of the proceedings covering 269 pages will cost $135 per page, and suggested that protesting citizens might finance the procedure by "buying a page."

"It ought to be worth that to us as individuals to prove we are not quitters and achieve a moral victory at the same time," he added. Then a motion by Arthur Davis to "appeal" went through with a rush. The association has a treasury balance of $217.32 to start with.

April 13 was designated for the next regular meeting of the association.

PALM SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED IN CHURCHES HERE

Men, Women and Children
Will Commence Holy Week
With Worship

SPECIAL MUSIC

Sermons Will Be Woven
About Themes Pertaining To the Day

In observance of Palm Sunday worshippers will gather in the churches tomorrow, commencing Holy Week with serious thought concerning the life of the Christ, and devoting special periods of worship to the One whose passion and death will soon be commemorated.

As on that day nearly two thousand years ago, will men, women and children sing "Hallelujahs" to the King of Kings, but with solemn resolve that their love and adoration will not wane, but grow stronger, as the week passes, making preparation in their souls for a glorious reception to the Risen Redeemer on Easter Day, one week hence.

The services at the many churches will include special song numbers, in praise to the Master, as well as sermons on Palm Sunday themes:

St. James's Church
Services for Palm Sunday at St. James's Church, include:

8 a. m., Holy Communion; 9:30 a. m., Church School; 10:45 a. m., Holy Communion and sermon; 7:45, evening prayer and sermon. Palms will be distributed at all services.

Services on Good Friday will be as follows: 12 to 3 p. m., meditation on seven last words on the cross; eight, evening prayer and sermon. The service from 12 to 3 is arranged so that anyone can go in when they desire and leave when they must. The rector extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend as much of this service as possible. Many business houses will close during those three hours and the time can be profitably spent in church at worship.

A service of Holy Baptism will be held on Easter Sunday afternoon at the Church at 3 p. m. The rector would be grateful if those parents who have children who have not yet been baptized would make arrangements to have this done at this service. The rector will be happy to administer Communion to the sick or aged at Easter time if any desire him to do so. Any having flowering plants for Easter and who are willing to loan them to the church for decoration, please send them to the church on Saturday morning, April 11th.

A letter from the finance committee together with an Easter offering envelope will be mailed to everyone during the coming week. The rector hopes the Easter offering will be unusually large.

Famous Cartoonist Draws New Type Comic Strip

Milt Gross, famous for his richly American humor, known to millions as the creator of "Count Screwloose" and other characters of the "funnies" as well as for his humorous prose, has developed a comic strip of a new and different sort—a neighborhood circus, as it were, laid in the corner delicatessen familiar to all.

"Delicatessen Dave" and Officer Riley and Mr. Yates, headlines in the new Milt Gross buffoonery, have caught on like wildfire. They could never have come to life except by the droll wizardry of the Gross pen, yet they are instantly recognizable types.

The people who trek through the comedy of "Dave's Delicatessen" are all homely and real, funny largely because they act with the absurdity of everyday life. At their most fantastic they are credible.

"Oh, could I write a book!" sighs Dave, after a particularly heavy interview with a group of customers. He thinks the creatures, good citizens all, who patronize his store are a pretty ridiculous lot. They are. But so is Dave—for he, too, is dissected by the irrepressible Gross satire.

"Dave's Delicatessen," a comic strip you and your friends will be laughing over, begins March 30th in The Courier.

LATIN AMERICAN TRADE

In an age of complete publicity advertisers do not hesitate to drag the most delicate situations and subjects out into the light of bold-face type. Nothing is too subtle or remote for their searching instruments, nothing too mysterious for their easy explanations. Conduct in social relations has lately been a favorite subject with them. No doubt the etiquette books have fostered that interest. But it was not an etiquette book advertisement that asked the question, "When you are left alone with a beautiful woman—what do you say?"

Some men might reply rudely that this is nobody's business. They would be the self-confident ones who always know what to say at the right time. But there are some who, like the man in the picture, can say nothing out of fear of saying the wrong thing. They are not equipped with "an epigram, a brilliant sally, a startling quotation" to charm beauty.

Advertising experts say that women do most of the buying in this country. Therefore good advertising must appeal to them. But what about the woman in this advertisement? There she sits, with her back discreetly turned, so that those reading the "ad" cannot see how beautiful she is. There is an expectant look about her. The back of her head is most expressive. Evidently she awaits something in the way of agreeable conversation, for she is not like other women, and has nothing to say herself. But it is inconceivable that she is hoping for gems culled from "the great minds of all times." Being a woman she wants to hear something nice about herself and something not so nice about other women she knows.

MISLEADING THE MALES

Buenos Aires is the scene of a British Empire Trade Exposition conceived and staged for the promotion of trade between Great Britain and Spanish America. It is an exposition of the first magnitude and important enough to be formally opened by the Prince of Wales. It is an exclusively British fair, yet the pavilions are of fiber wood made in the United States, the amplifiers through which the prince spoke were made in the United States, the streets of the exposition city were built by machinery from the United States and the exposition message of the prince was transmitted to Canada by an American broadcasting company.

England and other countries may seek trade in Central and South America, but they cannot do so without emphasizing the dependence of the Latin-American countries on the United States. Here is a striking example of this interdependence.

Latin-America is more dependent upon American capital and manufactured products than prosperity in the United States is dependent upon trade with the other Americas. Knowing this, competition of European exporters is not feared by Americans.

Only thing you can tell by some watches is what time it isn't.

A cynic is a man who mistakes cheerfulness for ignorance.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"
By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest, Emily Jardy's country home, is discovered by Assistant Police Chief Walter Vance through a mysterious phone call. Emily's butler denies receiving a note from the Baroness. The shawl of Mary Frost, a guest, is found on the body. Her husband, Ted, was removed to the Baroness. Mary's statement of returning to Eagle's Nest, alone, for the shawl, at midnight, and seeing it on Laura Allan, is discounted by information that both she and Ted arrived home together at 4 A. M. Laura claims Mary was wearing the shawl in the garden. "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and fiancée of Vance, sees the butler dancing and is puzzled. Later, she learns that the Baroness was Margaret Belle, noted dancer. A pair of slippers is found on the roof and a uniform, similar to the strip of linen discovered near the body, is unearthed in the cellar. "Bim" notes that the Baroness' maid wears large shoes though otherwise petite. "Bim" discovers the tire treads on Trent's car correspond with tracks found on an unused road near Eagle's Nest. Millicent Trent spies on her. Bob Trent resents a snub the Baroness had given his wife. Mary Frost is jealous of Ted. She warns "Bim" against giving up Vance for Carey, the New York reporter.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
I suppose your young man hasn't caught the criminal yet, Bim? Guess we'll all be glad when he does: the thing's getting on all our nerves. . . . see my lighter, Mary? Left it lying around here somewhere."
Mary had seen the lighter. "It's over there on the table, dear—that and your cigarettes."
But the lighter was not on the table. Ted slipped the cigarette case into his pocket and began looking around in the awkward way of a man on the hunt, but his efforts were fruitless.
Taking pity on his helplessness, Bim set out to assist though with no better success. Eventually dary put on a robe and joined them.

The Missing Lighter
"But I can't understand it," she said when it was plain that they would find no lighter either on the table or elsewhere. "I saw it on the dresser this morning and told Sarah to put it over here with your cigarettes. She stood it against the lamp—she's a little afraid of it, you know—right after seeing in my tray. I don't see."
"Doesn't matter," Ted declared in a manner quite magnanimous for him. "It can't get far away; it's got my name on it. There's another downstairs. So long for a while."

He brushed Mary's cheek with his lips and Bim saw the quick color flood her face. Rather awful to love anyone so much, the girl was thinking. Poor Mary—poor Millicent—poor all of them! So eager for happiness—and so destined for disappointment.
She did not remain long after Ted had taken his leave, and as she strolled along the drive which dropped sharply from the summit of the mountain, there was a tall, good-looking young fellow coming to meet her, swinging along with his hat in his hand, the wind ruffling his hair, which had escaped its sleek combing for once.
At sight of Carl Carey, Bim's mind whirled. Mary's admonition had been too graphic to fail of effect; yet thinking was required and Bim had not yet had time to think. And there was his char-

He brushed Mary's face with his lips and Bim saw the quick color flood her face to influence her; the magnetism of his personality to catch and hold her like a warm, lovely light.

So she allowed his arm to go around her—his lips to press hers. And she returned his kiss even though what ran through her head was, "I don't know—oh, I don't know!"
"What's going on?" he inquired brightly. "Where you been and how come? Who said what and why?"

All In The Game

"You don't expect," she replied, laughing, "that I'm going to answer all those questions? Seeing friends is where I've been and what they said isn't for publication. Now satisfied, Mr. Nosey?"
"Not any," he answered with an unexpected note of seriousness. "Don't overlook the fact that you're in the army now, girl dear. All in the game, you see—the newspaper game. So if there's any nice, hot scandal—"

It was a new light on Carl Carey. Bim had heard of news writers who were not too scrupulous about confidence—about reporters who got around confidence by one make-shift or another. She intended not to be such a one herself; if "the game" demanded this sort of treachery, then she would quit, and with no regret. But Carl Carey—Was it possible?

Unaccountably there flashed before her a vision of Mary's face, vivid and comforted as it had been when she said, "Character is all that counts—not charm."

The next minute Bim had forgotten her doubts of Carl Carey. Besides being a thoroughly accomplished love-maker, he also was a delightful companion and he seemed to understand intuitively that this was no time for tenderness.

They rambled on down the drive beneath the lacy shadows of the trees and began to talk in an entertaining way of Kingcliffe, giving to Bim a new vision of the town.

"But you're too good for a small town paper," he finished. "You'll make a sensation in New York. And here's the lad who's going to see that you do, my dear."

Pine Hill, never realizing that Carey's cleverness might reach beyond her words and there discover what she meant to keep profoundly secret. Afterwards she was to wonder at his intimate knowledge of her friends; she was to question long and vainly how he had come by the fact of Mary's jealousy of Ted Frost and Millicent's willingness to stop at no desperate deed which conceivably might benefit Bob Trent.

As a matter of duty Bim visited the station house after Carey had left her on some mysterious errand of his own. She found Walter in charge—a new Walter who was friendly but politely impersonal; a young man she could not by any stretch of the imagination regard as a sweetheart. This attitude was what she always had asked of him; yet now, perversely enough, it failed to satisfy her; she found herself resorting to all sorts of little feminine wiles which he persistently ignored to bring again between them the old relationship which had snapped yesterday when he stalked away and left her before the gate-house at Eagle's Nest with Carl Carey.

Bim sighed, realizing that it was no use, and told of her call on Mary, though naturally she said nothing of the reason for that call. "It hasn't anything to do with the case, Wally, only it seems so—so surprising to think of Mary being jealous. You remember what Mr. Reynolds said about meek people when they forget to be meek? I just wanted to tell you. It sort of bothers me."

"Glad to be of service as a listener," he remarked shortly, drumming on the desk with a pencil.

He looked so remote, so hopelessly removed from her that Bim could not resist another attempt at reaching him. Blinking to keep back the tears, she began softly, "Walter—"

"Yes?"
"Wally, dear—"

Their quarrel might have been patched up then and there and a great deal of heartache saved for them both had there not been an interruption.

Crisp, determined footsteps came along the corridor and then the maid Imogene, looking like a maid out of a French play in a ruffled black dress and a little hat tilted over one eye, flounced in and stood regarding Walter with a sullen look.

This Is YOUR Chance

As a leading feature of a program of extension and expansion of circulation territory, the Bristol Courier today announces a startling and amazing offer through which to reward its friends and readers in the Bristol trading territory. This newspaper is going to give, in return for spare time effort, cash of a total of $10,000.

It is well known that no other single item contributes so greatly to the building and development of the trading area of a community as a wide and well established circulation of a good newspaper radiating from that section. The Bristol Courier recognizes the fact that the influence and prominence of Bristol can be extended and in order to quickly and efficiently accomplish its aim of taking Bristol to those sections through the columns of The Courier, it has inaugurated this circulation campaign, which is fully explained in this issue.

This generous undertaking is launched and will be conducted upon a plan worthy of the integrity and tradition of The Bristol Courier. While there should be competition for size and value of awards, yet the plan does not provide the old contest idea of winning or losing. It is a business proposition from start to finish, one in which each participant will be rewarded in direct proportion to the effort expended and the results obtained.

Ten thousand dollars in prizes, in gold and silver—in fact, just as many awards as there are participants—will be distributed among the men and women and boys and girls of Bristol and surrounding country within the next few weeks by The Courier. It is predicted that this great trade extension campaign and prize distribution—the liberality of which surpasses by far any previous attempt in this section—will be the most successful in the annals of newspaperdom in this vicinity.

The Courier today extends to its friends and readers the opportunity to participate in this extraordinary event. An early start means an easy finish. The four-page announcement of this issue explains the plan in detail. Read every word of this announcement, then come to The Courier Campaign office, or phone or write to the Campaign Department and signify your interest. Ask to have the details explained to you. This will obligate you in no way. Then, when you know the facts regarding your opportunity, make your decision, secure in the knowledge that you will be well rewarded, that every participant is compensated for good effort with big sums in gold and silver—real cash.

We are two worried kids and up in our twenties, and what we want to know, Nancy, is this: We have lots of company and are liked by many girl friends, but can't get married on account of the small salaries we make and, besides, we could not care for the modern life of today. We have been advised to go ahead and get married. What do you say, Nancy?"

G. AND W.: G. AND W.: If you have only a small salary, I don't think that the modern life of today would care for you. This is no reflection on the modern girl. It is simply that the standard of living has become so high that those things which women once regarded as luxuries have become necessities or are casually accepted as everyday things. What are your prospects for the future? I flatter you any particular girl in mind. Is she working too? If you are only making a small salary, what is who has advised you to go ahead and get married? I hope that it is someone who can help you financially. Don't take on obligations unless you are certain you can fulfill them. And matrimony is the greatest obligation a man can undertake.

DEAR NANCY LEE:

I have met a girl that I think is about the only one I really care for. I know her mother personally. But do not know how to tell her what I would like to say.

The girl is in her teens and I am 20. She acts as though she enjoys my company.

Would you wait for her to make the first move or should I see her mother?

FUZZLED BLUE EYES

PUZZLED BLUE EYES: It would be wise to see how the young lady feels about matters before you talk to her mother. Unless, of course, the purpose of your talk is to ask mamma to sound the young hopeful out as to her feelings for you. I assure you that you would not find it difficult to let the young lady realize how much her friendship means to you and how much you desire that affection and love should grow from the rich soil of mutual companionship and interests.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a daily reader of your column and would like your advice.

I am nineteen years old and engaged to a man nineteen years my senior. I love him with all my heart and he loves me.

My parents like him and approve of our engagement. He doesn't drink and is a nice fellow.

Don't you think, Nancy Lee, that we could get along all right. I am willing to work until we get started.

My aunt knows a fellow that she wants me to go with. Do you think that is her reason for her objections?

"BLUE EYES" & "BROWNE".

BLU EYES AND BROWNE: We'll take for granted that you love the man and he loves you. The man is 36 years of age and, what prospects has he for the future. Is he with a firm that will factory? A young woman who marries a man of 36 should not have to think of going to work unless for the purpose of getting a little extra money for herself. That's quite in order when she marries a young fellow and they both work and plan together for a happy future.

Eventful Evening Spent By Epworth Leaguers at Rally

TREVOSE, Mar. 28.—An evening "chuck-full" of pleasing numbers, was enjoyed by the Bristol Group Epworth Leaguers in session at the bi-monthly rally in the Methodist Church, here, last evening.

Moving pictures of the League institutes, vocal quartet contest, and a sketch, were witnessed with interest, and the serving of refreshments concluded the eventful night.

Elmer K. Esser, a most active Epworthian, was responsible for the showing of the pictures of the Millersville and Collegeville Institutes of 1930 and 1929. Pep songs, thrown on the screen, were sung by the young men and young women, who were urged to form institute clubs now, in order that the leagues of this section might be well represented at the states this summer.

The quartets vying for honors last evening were from Hulmeville and Bensalem, with the former being accorded the honors. To that group will the new banner be awarded. The members of the winning quartet were: Mrs. Harold Daseburg, Mrs. Samuel K. Faust, Miss Grace H. Hlick, and Miss Adeline E. Reetz. The Bensalem four were: Messrs. George Bilger, Ernest Heizman, Samuel Tibbs and Joseph Stradling.

Howard Phillips, Langhorne, president of the Bristol Group, announced the winners of the other banners as follows: Percentage banner, Penns Park; attendance banner, Bensalem.

A pleasing sketch was staged by young women of the hostess league.

Nominating committee appointed by the president, is comprised of: Rev. George F. Hess, Curtis Seelye, Rev. Alexander B. Davidson, Rev. Raymond Nickerson, and Millwood Mather. May rally, scheduled for Friday evening, the 15th, will take place at the Langhorne M. E. Church.

Woman Loses Fight to Halt Placing of Pole on Property

Clementina Di Nunzio, Beaver and Spring streets, yesterday lost out in her fight to prevent the placing of a pole by the Philadelphia Electric Company in front of her property.

Upon information sworn to by William T. Ryan, superintendent of the Eastern Division, Mr. Di Nunzio was accused of "breach of the peace" and "disorderly conduct."

It stated further that she prevented workmen from placing the pole, that she shouted and talked in a loud manner, thus attracting a crowd.

The warrant was served and Mrs. DiNunzio taken to the Municipal Building. While under arrest for about 30 minutes, workmen slipped the pole into position and then Mrs. DiNunzio was admitted to bail and released.

She is to be given a further hearing this afternoon at 1:30.

Air Transport Industry Booming in Pittsburgh

Business increases tremendously at Bettis airport during the summer months when almost every operating company there schedules short pleasure runs at nominal prices for patrons who seek to zoom up in an airplane merely for the novelty of the experience. This business, incidentally, is considered by officials at the field as one of the most important factors in the increased use of airplanes for passenger travel. The experience helps the beginner to overcome his first fears and gives him a sample of what may be expected on a longer journey.

More than 1,000 passengers an afternoon have embarked upon these short rides during the summer month, officials at the field said. The usual price is $2.00 for a five-minute ride, made in a closed cabin plane carrying about five or seven passengers. During the winter months, when the weather was not as conducive to flying, the average Sunday loads according to officials at Bettis field, reached a total of 186 passengers.

Affiliated with Transcontinental Western Air, Inc., Pittsburgh Aviation Industries operates its own Pittsburgh-Butler airport and an auxiliary system, Pennsylvania airlines, from Bettis field. The Pittsburgh-Butler airport is located about 24 miles from the center of the downtown business district. The field is completely equipped with a revolving beacon, flood lights and other auxiliary apparatus for night flying and landing.

With an enrollment of 63 students in the flying school and 145 in the grand course, the Pittsburgh Aviation (Continued on Page 6)

Why Commute?

Why travel back and forth to your employment, which is here in Bristol, when such desirable dwellings are to be obtained here at such reasonable rents? It will pay any individual to investigate!

Work Where You Live and Live Where You Work.

If you are employed in Bristol you should live here. It will be less expensive and there are numerous other advantages derived from making your home in the town where you are employed.

You will save many hours a year which are now spent in traveling and you will have more time with your family.

The saving in money will also be considerable. Add to that which you are now paying for rent the amount which you spend in traveling back and forth to your employment here. You'll be surprised at the total. Rent a house here at a moderate rental and bank the difference.

Houses.

Comfortable dwellings, well situated and at moderate rents are to be found in that portion of Bristol which is immediately adjacent to the P. R. R. passenger station.

These houses make ideal homes and consist of six rooms with bath.

Conveniences.

They are heated by hot-air furnaces with a direct pipe leading to every room. They are lighted with electricity and are equipped with sewer, municipal water and gas.

Each room is well lighted and yet the space devoted to windows is not excessive.

Front porches are another attractive feature as is also a small rear yard where children can play in safety away from the perils of traffic.

Houses such as these would rent for considerably more in any city, where the conveniences would not surpass those offered here.

TRENTON BAPTISTS LOSE TO TULLYTOWN FIVE

By T. M. June

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 28.—Scoring with ease during the second half, the Tullytown A. C. basketball five swamped the Trenton First Baptist last night in Monti's Hall by the score of 60-15.

In the second half, the Tullytown five scored points at the rate of two points a minute and because of their loose playing might have scored a great number of more points. The score at the end of the first session was 19-13 and from then on it was Tullytown's game. Field goals began to rain so fast that the scorekeeper could hardly keep up with the game.

Besides its wonderful offense, the Tullytown five continued its fine defensive playing. The visitors only scored two points during the entire second half and both of these were the results of foul shots.

There were no individual stars of the game as every Tullytown player aided in the victory, either by the scoring of points or passing the ball to a player who did score.

In the preliminary game, the Tullytown Reserves again managed to nose out the Trenton Trojans. This time the count was 21-19.

Most of the scoring of this fray was done in the first half as the second half found both fives playing defensive basketball and not giving their opponents a chance to score.

Ennis and Dugan led the Reserves shooters with eleven and five points, respectively. Cardelli with ten points led the losers.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX HAVE STRONG STAFF

(This is the fourteenth in a series of 16 stories covering 1931 prospects of National and American baseball league teams.)

By Harold Johnson

L. N. S. Special Correspondent
SAN ANTONIO, Mar. 28.—Pitching of a high caliber, improved catching and a heavier hitting outfield are assured the Chicago White Sox in the impending American League campaign.

Manager Donie Bush frankly admits he doesn't fancy the outlook on first base and is casting about in quest of an experienced initial sacker.

It has been definitely determined to retain Bill Cissell on second base and William Kamm will retain his post at third. In Luke Appling, aged 21, the Sox own a shortstop whom Bush predicts will blossom into a real sensation.

Johnny Kerr and Irvin Jeffries will be retained for utility infield roles, both being right-handed batters and exceptional fielders.

The outfield has been definitely selected presenting Carl Reynolds, in right, Mel Simons in center and Smead Jolley in left as regulars while Bob Fothergill and Fred Eichrodt will operate as the reserve fly-chasers.

The Sox catching corps looks to be the strongest the club has known since the palmy days of Ray Schalk. Bennie Tate probably will function as the first string receiver.

Walter (Butch) Henline is destined to see considerable action back of the plate. The third catcher is Frank Grube, strong-armed youngster, who starred in 1930 for the Buffalo international, hitting .347.

Air Transport Industry Is Booming in Pittsburgh

Industries Corporation operates the only Federal and state approved school of aviation in Pennsylvania at both the Pittsburgh-Butler and Bettis fields. Overhauling air repair bases are maintained by the company at both fields, also.

Chartered plane service is available at both fields in the company's planes while the only regularly scheduled operation is one daily flight in each direction between Pittsburgh and Baltimore by way of Cleveland and Washington, D. C. Approximately 12 outgoing and 10 incoming passengers use the service daily, officials estimated.

Records maintained by the company show a continual and rapid increase in the company's business. More passengers are being carried now during the winter flying months than were previously carried on the busiest summer days. February, 1930, was a record month in the company's business, G. R. Hann, president, said.

About 35 miles from Pittsburgh is located the Pittsburgh-Greensburg airport, operated by the Main Aeronautics Company of Pittsburgh in conjunction with an auxiliary landing field at the Bettis airport. The field, completely equipped for night flying, contains hangars for visiting ships.

Runways have been constructed over 140 acres of the field's over-all area of 712 acres. A hotel and restaurant are maintained at the field together with a branch of the United States Weather Bureau, and teletype communication with other airports in the district.

About two passengers daily are carried at the present time over the scheduled route of operation from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, O., by way of Wheeling, W. Va., Marietta, O., Parkersburg, W. Va., and Gallipolis, O., to Huntington, W. Va., and Portsmouth, O.

Now in the process of construction, the municipal airport is to be located about 8 miles from the center of downtown Pittsburgh. According to ultimate plans of construction, the airport will eventually cover 1,000 acres of ground with its auxiliaries and other appurtenances.

Plans specify a machine shop, power house, storage buildings, field supplies, engine testing buildings and a fuselage platform located at lower than field level to minimize the danger of accidents. Manufacturing buildings covering more than 24 acres of ground are also provided for in the plans together with a reviewing stand to accommodate 65,000 spectators. Other projects include hotels and restaurants, a hospital, and dwellings for the field personnel.

Located at Bridgeville, about seven miles from Pittsburgh, the Mayer field is used chiefly for call and demand flights in planes owned and operated by independent companies. Chief of these is the Lytle Flying Service. The field is unequipped for night flying and is used at present solely for passenger service. The Lytle service has no regularly scheduled operations and takes its passengers on chartered plane flights to any feasible destination.

Although traffic has shown an immense increase over last year, air officials of the Lytle company anticipate at least another 20 per cent increase in 1931.

About 30 acres in area, the Mayer field is equipped with one small hangar. Space is available for visiting ships. The field is owned and operated by the Mayer Aircraft Corporation.

Rodgers Field, located near Aspinwall at a distance of about 10 miles from Pittsburgh, is operated by the Federal Government as the United States Reserve field. The location is about 42 acres in area and is equipped with two large government hangars. Lieutenant Samuel C. Eaton is the commanding officer in charge.

For the use of seaplanes, the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation has established a river airport on the Monongahela River, within a minute's walking distance of the downtown business district. The port has a frontage of 700 feet.

Officials of aviation companies in the Pittsburgh district have the utmost confidence that the phenomenal rise in the use of airplanes for travel and transportation will be maintained in the future. Several have reported that February, 1931, was a banner month in the histories of their businesses.

Spokesman for air officials and enthusiasts in the Pittsburgh district, Capt. Louis T. Barry, president of the Aero club, forecast for International News Service that Pittsburgh by reason of its natural facilities will eventually hold an enviable niche in the world of aviation. Capt. Barry is convinced, he says, that an ever-increasing number of travelers will take to the air with each passing month.

Honesty Among Fighters

By HARDIN BURNLEY

OUR old pal, Diogenes, was at some pains trekking about with his lantern aloft in search of an honest man. Were that worthy gentleman alive today, and his honest-man hunt confined to the prizefighting ring, there are any number of experts and quite a few paying customers who would advise him to swap his lantern for an arc light—or, better, give the whole thing up, to home and read a good book.

On the other hand, there are those loyal and true citizens who will argue until you're blue in the face that the fight game is on the up-and-up, and if you don't believe it, come on out in the alley. Discussion, and, in some quarters, considerable indignation has been aroused by the recent show staged by King Tut, of Minneapolis, and Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. D., in New York.

While headlines were screaming that Tut had gone to rest upon the canvas in a fashion not at all becoming to royalty, and attention was embarrassingly drawn to the sudden change in betting odds an extremely short time before the bell, the New York Boxing Commission started an investigation.

This is not the first fight which has resulted in charges that managers had made certain secret covenants, which, had they become public information, would not have added to the gate receipts.

From time to time, things have been said about the quality of boxing merchandise served up before Primo Carnera. While some say the big fellow from Italy will never win his right to meet the "heavyweight champion of the world" on account of his rather sickly performances against Jim Maloney, they point to the same two bouts as irrevocable arguments in favor of the honesty of Carnera, his handlers and boxing in general.

If Jim Maloney had laid down for a snooze it would have been a break for Primo—another stepping stone toward his Big Chance. But, in the first bout, Maloney was the winner. In the second bout, Carnera won a referee's decision.

Jimmy McLarnin is considered a square-shooting boy. The fans watch Johnny Risko without any qualms. Johnny Dundee is the same way, and so on—there are many others.

And the increasing popularity of wrestling. The days when a fight card drew thousands of breathless fans and a correspondingly large number of dollars, have been over (at least for the time being) some time. This, it is argued, is not as much due to "depression" as it is to the reflections which have been cast upon the fighting business of late. At least, say the disgruntled, the wrestlers give you a run and many reverberant grunts for your money.

Besides, it's not only difficult to prove a fake fight, but there are many honest boys who are often fondling the canvas when they'd much rather be standing upright—and tried to.
